

Surrender to Miracles & Abundance

I surrender to the miracle of all things.

I surrender to abundance in every form.

I surrender my fear and surrender to love every moment, every breath.

I look up at the sky and see the wonder of the universe, so much larger than myself, my loved ones, the human species or even this lush, gorgeous Earth.

I surrender to the wonder of children, and the sun, and the flowers and all the large and tiny blessings that happen each day.

I surrender to the miracle of my life.

I will not believe anyone who tells me miracles are not possible.

Miracles are as much a part of our lives as our breath or our heartbeat.

I surrender to the miracle of my spiritual path and trust my journey more deeply every day.

I do not question my intuition.

I do not question my heart.

I am devoted to the wonder of the moment and the integrity of my path.

Praise our world of miracles and wonder.

Praise our world of darkness and light.

I surrender my judgments and fear and small minded thinking.

I embrace radical kindness towards myself and every being.

I surrender to the miracle of the moment.

I do not rush through my life, but bow to the sacred with every step and every breath.

My life is a prayer to abundance.

I do not believe in scarcity.

I believe there is enough for all in every situation.

I surrender to my success and to your success and the success of all my brothers and sisters.

I surrender to goodness.

I surrender to all the goddesses and the gods.

I am humble and happy and grateful for my life.

I vow not to miss the miracles in small things.

I vow to touch the earth each day.

I vow to honor my body.

I vow to care for this planet as if it was my precious mother or precious child.

There is no miracle too small to praise.

I will not forget to praise myself and others.

I will not forget to honor my journey.

I know life is short.

I know that love is the answer.

*I will keep these priorities in place
As I travel through my days*

My path is one of joy.

My path is not the path of fear.

I let go to my heart.

I let go to my soul.

I raise my arms to the sky and say "thank-you"

Accept me.

Love me.

Care for me.

I am in love with myself, with you, and the world.

I surrender to the wonder of all things.